City transfers pool to Redevelopment Authority

Move allows bonds to be issued to finance project

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Madison City Council approved a resolution Tuesday night to transfer the Crystal Beach pool park to the city's newly created Redevelopment Authority and then lease the pool over the next 25 years in order to secure and repay about a $5 million bond issue needed to finance the cost to demolish the current pool and design and build a new pool on the site.

The Redevelopment Authority, created by the city's Redevelopment Commission and previously approved by city council, allows the city to take on the long-term debt needed to finance the project over the next 25 years. The city will then lease the site with the lease money used to pay off the bonds. The city anticipates borrowing up to $4.9 million over 25 years with annual payments of up to $425,000 but the annual debt service could come in slightly lower in the range of about $398,000.

Mayor Bob Courtney said the financing mechanism is almost identical to how local schools corporation's finance major construction and renovation projects by creating a building authority that takes ownership of the building and issues the bonds under assurances that the school will lease the building and pay the annual debt services.

Courtney said the city hopes to gather the funds from multiple sources to pay the lease including the Redevelopment Commission, which had approved the lease earlier on Tuesday, gate receipts at the pool and public and private entities and stakeholders in Madison and Jefferson County. He said any shortfall in the amount raised would have to be made up with tax dollars but the anticipation and goal is that no tax

Touch-up for safety

Workers for Indiana Sign and Barricade, of Indianapolis, were repainting crosswalks on Main street in downtown Madison this week ahead of this weekend's Madison Chautauqua Festival of the Arts and Old Court Days when thousands of cars and pedestrians will take to the streets and sidewalks of Madison. The fresh coat of white paint, along with reflective beads, will make the pedestrian crossings much more visible, especially at night and in the rain.

Local music promoter Tony Novello continues to share his love of quality, original music with the Madison community.

"So it's a band I've never heard of, playing on a Tuesday night, and to top it off it's polka music," relates Tony Novello, the driving force behind the Alex Meixner show at Red Bicycle Hall this coming Tuesday, Sept. 27. "Believe me, I get it. You're asking, why should I change out of my sweatpants on a school night for this show?

"Well, I'll tell you why," continues Tony. "First of all, it's not strictly a polka band, not in the old-fashioned sense. It's high energy dance music from the first song to the last. And with this band, you never know, the last song might be Thunderstruck by AC/DC!

"Secondly, while it is on a Tuesday night, we're starting the show early at 7:00 so you can come, have a great time, and still be home by 9:00 or so.

"And lastly, the Alex Meixner Band is one of THE biggest names on the Oktoberfest circuit. It's nothing for them to play in front of thousands of screaming fans. The only reason we could even get them to drop by Madison as they kick off their Northeast Oktoberfest tour is because one of the band members, Michael Fortunato, is the sax player in the band.

"Michael, many of you may know, is a multi-instrumentalist who moved to Madison a few years ago. He has energized and enhanced our music scene in so many ways. He had to call in some big favors to get Alex and the band to play our humble small town, so we all need to get out and support this show."

Speaking of people who have made a big impact on Madison's music scene, we all need to acknowledge Tony Novello himself. Tony moved to Madison the same year I did, in 1995, and it wasn't long before he was finding ways to share his love of quality, original music with the community.

Chautauqua Festival of Arts brings quality artists to a quality venue

BY BOB DEMAREE

From its humble beginnings in 1970, the Madison Chautauqua Festival of Arts has grown into a premier event that draws thousands of visitors into Jefferson County each year.

This weekend marks the 51st Chautauqua in downtown Madison from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

As big as the festival's impact has become, the Chautauqua is run by a 10 member, all-volunteer committee that meets year-round to plan and organize the event.

"Most of the committee has some sort of connection to art, or they have a love of Madison and they just want to support the festival so it continues to happen year after year," said Kara Hinze, the Chautauqua's coordinator.

Hinze cited several reasons why the Chautauqua consistently draws large crowds — mostly due to quality of the event and its artists and the quality of the location.

"I think we are trying to make sure we have high quality art work. People come because it is a quaint town, and the footprint is in a beautiful area of town along the river with beautiful homes," Hinze said.

She said the St. James Court Art Show in Louisville "is a huge art festival" with approximately 600 artists but that's not what Madison strives to be.

"That's great, but I think it's overwhelming for people, and they appreciate coming here because we're smaller," Hinze said. "We don't ever strive to be that big. We don't want to outgrow our space because we want to keep it contained and keep it manageable."

Hinze said Madison Chautauqua also receives a lot of community support. "A lot of people spend a lot of time getting ready for Chautauqua weekend," she said. "It's a great presentation of the city."

This year's Madison Chautauqua will feature 170 artists including local artist booths from the schools. Hinze said there will be 57 new artists with 108 returning artists including last year's best of show winner, India Cruse-Griffin. There are nine artists returning who have participated in the Chautauqua for 21 to 29 years.

"We're getting back to a fuller footprint," said Hinze, noting that there was some apprehension remaining last year due to COVID-19 which resulted in fewer artists.

With the increase in artists this year, some booths will once again be located on Elm Street this year. The kids tent and chalk walk, stationed last year in the southern part of Elm Street, will be moved up closer to Second Street this year.

There will also be 25 food vendors to provide a good variety of food options. Additionally, there will be entertainers throughout the footprint of the festival.

Traffic plan to focus on flow, safety

BY BOB DEMAREE

The City of Madison has a plan in place for traffic control in downtown Madison during the Madison Chautauqua Festival of the Arts and Old Court Days this weekend when thousands of visitors take to the streets and sidewalks on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Madison Police Chief John Wallace updated the city's Board of Public Works and Safety on the plan at its meeting on Monday.

"As you know this is a hugely attended event and brings a lot pedestrian and vehicular traffic into town," said Wallace.

He said there will be additional officers working — and in particular monitoring Main Street at Broadway, Vine and Mill streets — which he said in the past have been areas

Inaugural Wild West Rodeo at fairgrounds this weekend

BY BOB DEMAREE

The inaugural Madison's Wild West Rodeo Show is coming to Jefferson County Friday and Saturday with hopes that pro rodeo can develop into an annual event in the future.

into something even more in the future.

The Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) event, where riders will compete in one of their final opportunities to earn money and points to qualify for the National Finals Rodeo to be held at the Jefferson County 4-H Fairgrounds.

There will be free admission to the rodeo vendor marketplace that will be open from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. each day. Tickets for the rodeo, which will run from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. each day, cost $30 for presale and $35 at the gate with gates opening at 6 p.m.

The event is organized by Elle Troutman and Tayler Rinehart, who also own McWhiggins Wonder Emporium in downtown Madison, with funding from the Jefferson County Board of Tourism. Rinehart's husband, Mike Solberg is a professional bareback rider and will be among the competitors. Solberg competes in both the PRCA and the Canadian Professional Rodeo Association (CPRA), and has already qualified for Canadian finals this year.

Troutman said she's "feeling a little bit of stress" for Solberg in he typically competes only in an audience of his peers, but with the rodeo in Madison he'll be performing in front of family and friends.

There are other local riders who will be competing. Morgan Nay, of Madison; Brittany Hostetler, of Commiskey; and Taylor Heveline, of Bedford, Kentucky, are all registered to compete.

"It's nice to have some hometowners," Troutman noted.

The rodeo will also attract "some of the best competitors in the nation," said Troutman, noting that Orin Larsen, a seven-time National Finals Rodeo (NFR) qualifier, and Caleb Bennett, a nine-time NFR qualifier, are scheduled to compete.

Competitors will be coming from all over the United States — North Dakota, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Oklahoma, Texas, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Utah, Wisconsin, Nebraska, South Dakota, Tennessee, three from Canada and 10 from Wyoming. There are two from Indiana — Nic Lica from Fort Wayne and Dakota Warnken of Wakarusa.

"We will have our local people who are outstanding athletes all the way to the ones that are really big in the industry," said Troutman.

In all, there will be 96 riders who are totally different each night — 48 on Friday and 48 on Saturday.

Because it is a competition, Rinehart said the professional riders are high performance athletes and it's a rare occurrence for them to get knocked of their horse during the bronc riding.

Troutman said a misconception about rodeo is that it's "about somebody getting thrown off or bucked off into the dirt but most of the time they don't get bucked off. Most of the time they ride for the full eight seconds then they have to be scored based on the way they ride, how they ride and to the judge's specification."

Rinehart noted the total score is a combination of the human score and the animal's score, noting the animal is scored on its performance too.

"People think it's just a wild horse that the guy tries to stay on, but the horse is actually a performance athlete as well. It has qualities that enhance the competitor's ride," Troutman said, who added that rodeo enthusiasts follow the livestock as closely as the competitors.

Troutman said the animals that compete in the rodeo actually have a life that's mostly leisurely. "They only work for eight seconds during the rodeo "then they eat and travel by big, beautiful semis and then go to the next place where they work again for about eight seconds. They are lucky if they work eight seconds a day for twice a week."

In addition to the rodeo competition, Dusta, the rodeo clown, will be performing along with other special entertainment.

Rinehart said they really love the Jefferson County 4-H Fairgrounds and the site promises to be a great venue.

"It's a great location," she said, adding that the assistance provided by the fair board — and Emerson Cole and Tim McDonough in particular — has really helped in organizing the event. "The fair board has been really receptive."

She said a portion of the proceeds from the rodeo will benefit Historic Madison Inc.'s Schroeder Saddletree Factory Museum. There was also Madison's Wild West Fashion Show held last month leading up to the rodeo, and portion of that event's receipts also went to the museum. Rinehart said she hopes the event also increases awareness of the Schroeder Saddletree Factory Museum.

Troutman said there were multiple reasons that she and Rinehart wanted to bring the Wild West Rodeo Show to Jefferson County.

"We love all of Jefferson County, all of Madison," and it's a way they thought could help promote local tourism, particularly through rodeo due to their involvement and connections. Additionally, because both Troutman and Rinehart are always busy with McWhiggins, they're rarely able to travel to rodeos, and it's their chance to be a part of one. "We realized it's a whole week long of celebration and festivities," she said.

The rodeo is scheduled for the same weekend as the Madison Chautauqua Festival of Art, but organizer hope to stage the event a weekend earlier next year during the weekend of Sept. 22-23 with potentially more days and more events. "We're going to grow it," said Rinehart, noting that for the first year the PRCA only allowed Madison to feature the rough stock events and the barrel racing. "Next year we would like to have all the events and have a full rodeo, but you have to work up to it and prove yourself to the PRCA."

Music will be returning on the north lawn of the Lanier Mansion on Saturday, an after-event added last year as part of the 50th anniversary celebration of the Chautauqua. "It went over so well and it was so nice we decided to continue it this year," said Hinze. The Jimmy Davis band will play from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. "We're encouraging the artists to come hang out with us, so it's a chance for the community to get to know the artists and the committee."

Parking in downtown Madison is always a challenge during Chautauqua, and Hinze hopes that congestion will be mitigated this year with the return of the shuttle service from the high school. Due to COVID-19 the shuttled was suspended last year. This year patrons can park their vehicles at Madison Consolidated High School on the hilltop and ride the shuttle both Saturday and Sunday on one $5 pass. There will be two buses running continuously with patrons dropped off at First and Broadway streets near the Chautauqua information booth.

OLD COURT DAYS

While the Chautauqua in one area of downtown Madison, Old Court Days will be taking place around the Jefferson County Courthouse square and in the city parking lot at Jefferson and Second streets.

Sponsored by the Madison Pilot Club, Old Court Days runs from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday with craft and food booths.

FRIENDS OF LIBRARY SALE

The Friends of the Madison-Jefferson County Public Library will host one of its biggest fundraisers of the year, and perhaps best value for anyone with a buck to spend, this weekend with its Fall Book Sale. The sale runs 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday at the downtown library, 420 West Main Street.

AIR SHOW

Elsewhere, the 21st annual Madison Municipal Airport Air Show also will be on Saturday at the airport on Madison's hilltop. Gates will open at 10 a.m. with activities that include helicopter and airplane rides, food and fun.

The air show begins at 1 p.m. and admission is $10 at the gate with children 14 and under free. Parking will be off-site but a shuttle to the airport is included with the entry fee.

TRAFFIC

where the most traffic issues have occurred. The officers will be stationed at those intersections to ensure that traffic is flowing well and that pedestrian are safe.

Meanwhile, Second and Vine streets will be closed to vehicle traffic but golf carts will be allowed to travel there. However, for safety reasons, Wallace requested approval to place a temporary stop sign there for the golf carts.

"I think that's a very good recommendation," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney as the board unanimously approved the temporary sign for the intersection.

Courtney noted there is "going to be a flood of people downtown at different times" and even as people leave the footprint of Chautauqua and Old Court Days, there will be "a tremendous amount of activity going on all across downtown, particularly on Main Street and at our crosswalks."

TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On Sept. 22, 1862, President Abraham Lincoln issued the preliminary Emancipation Proclamation, declaring all slaves in rebel states should be free as of January 1, 1863.

ON THIS DATE:

In 1776, during the Revolutionary War, Capt. Nathan Hale, 21, was hanged as a spy by the British in New York.

In 1911, pitcher Cy Young, 44, gained his 511th and final career victory as he hurled a 1-0 shutout for the Boston Rustlers against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Forbes Field.

In 1949, the Soviet Union exploded its first atomic bomb.

In 1961, the Interstate Commerce Commission issued rules prohibiting racial discrimination on interstate buses.

In 1975, Sara Jane Moore attempted to shoot President Gerald R. Ford outside a San Francisco hotel, but missed.

In 1980, the Persian Gulf conflict between Iran and Iraq erupted into full-scale war.

In 1985, rock and country music artists participated in "Farm Aid," a concert staged in Champaign, Illinois, to help the nation's farmers.

In 1993, 47 people were killed when an Amtrak passenger train fell off a bridge and crashed into Big Bayou Canot near Mobile, Alabama. (A tugboat pilot lost in fog had pushed a barge into the railroad bridge, knocking the tracks 38 inches out of line just minutes before the train arrived.)

In 1994, the situation comedy "Friends" debuted on NBC-TV.

In 1995, an AWACS plane carrying U.S. and Canadian military personnel crashed on takeoff from Elmendorf Air Force Base near Anchorage, Alaska, killing all 24 people aboard.

In 2014, the United States and five Arab nations launched airstrikes against the Islamic State group in Syria, sending waves of planes and Tomahawk cruise missiles against an array of targets.

In 2020, U.S. deaths from the coronavirus topped 200,000, by far the highest confirmed death toll from the virus in the world at that point, according to a count by Johns Hopkins University.

Ten years ago: President Barack Obama campaigned before a crowd of 18,000 in Wisconsin, the home state of GOP vice-presidential candidate Paul Ryan. In the aftermath of the killing of the U.S. ambassador and three other Americans, residents of the Libyan city of Benghazi protested at the compounds of several militias, vowing to rid themselves of armed factions and Islamic extremists.

Five years ago: As the scale of the damage from Hurricane Maria started to become clearer, Puerto Rican officials said they could not contact more than half of the communities in the U.S. territory, where all power had been knocked out to the island's 3.4 million people. President Donald Trump said NFL owners should fire players who kneel during the national anthem. The federal government told election officials in 21 states that hackers had targeted their systems before the 2016 presidential election. Sen. John McCain declared his opposition to the GOP's last-ditch effort to repeal and replace "Obamacare," the second time in three months McCain had emerged as the destroyer of his party's signature promise to voters.

One year ago: At a virtual "vaccine summit" on the sidelines of the U.N. General Assembly, President Joe Biden said the United States was doubling, to 1 billion doses, its purchases of Pfizer's COVID-19 shots to share with the world. Bargainers from both parties said bipartisan congressional talks on overhauling policing practices had ended without agreement; the effort had begun after killings of unarmed Black people by officers sparked protests across the U.S.

TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On Sept. 23, 1952, Sen. Richard M. Nixon, R-Calif., salvaged his vice-presidential nomination by appearing on television from Los Angeles to refute allegations of improper campaign fundraising in what became known as the "Checkers" speech.

ON THIS DATE:

In 1780, British spy John Andre was captured along with papers revealing Benedict Arnold's plot to surrender West Point to the British.

In 1806, the Lewis and Clark expedition returned to St. Louis more than two years after setting out for the Pacific Northwest.

In 1955, a jury in Sumner, Mississippi, acquitted two white men, Roy Bryant and J.W. Milam, of murdering Black teenager Emmett Till. (The two men later admitted to the crime in an interview with Look magazine.)

In 1957, nine Black students who'd entered Little Rock Central High School in Arkansas were forced to withdraw because of a white mob outside.

In 1962, "The Jetsons," an animated cartoon series about a Space Age family, premiered as the ABC television network's first program in color.

In 1987, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., withdrew from the Democratic presidential race following questions about his use of borrowed quotations and the portrayal of his academic record.

In 1999, the Mars Climate Orbiter apparently burned up as it attempted to go into orbit around the Red Planet.

In 2001, President George W. Bush returned the American flag to full staff at Camp David, symbolically ending a period of national mourning following the 9/11 attacks.

In 2002, Gov. Gray Davis signed a law making California the first state to offer workers paid family leave.

In 2011, after 41 years, the soap opera "All My Children" broadcast its final episode on ABC-TV.

In 2016, President Barack Obama vetoed a bill to allow the families of 9/11 victims to sue the government of Saudi Arabia, arguing it undermined national security. (Both the House and Senate voted to override the veto.)

In 2020, President Donald Trump refused to commit to a peaceful transfer of power if he were to lose the election, telling reporters, "We're going to have to see what happens."

Ten years ago: The Libyan militia suspected in the Sept. 11 attack on the U.S. diplomatic compound that killed the U.S. ambassador and three other Americans said it had disbanded on orders of the country's president. "Homeland" won the Emmy Award for best drama series, and its stars Claire Danes and Damian Lewis each won leading actor awards; "Modern Family" received four awards, including a three-peat as best comedy series.

Five years ago: President Donald Trump tweeted that NBA star Stephen Curry of the Golden State Warriors was no longer invited to the White House because Curry had said he didn't want to make such a visit with his championship team; NBA star LeBron James responded with a tweet calling Trump a "bum" and saying, "Going to the White House was a great honor until you showed up!" Large amounts of federal aid began moving into Puerto Rico to help communities still without fresh water, fuel, electricity or phone service in the aftermath of Hurricane Maria.

One year ago: Opening a major new phase in the U.S. vaccination drive against COVID-19, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention endorsed booster shots for millions of older or otherwise vulnerable Americans. In an effort to combat climate change, the Environmental Protection Agency issued a rule sharply limiting domestic production and use of hydrofluorocarbons, highly potent greenhouse gases commonly used in refrigerators and air conditioners. BPWS approves $145K for 13 PACE applications

PACE applications totaling nearly $145,000 were approved for 13 properties at Monday's meeting of Madison's Board of Public Works and Safety.

Four of the addresses are in the city's targeted area for revitalization and four are dilapidated structures, accounting for $101,876.58 of the $144,303.13 in city PACE funds dispersed.

"This is a great use of our dollars," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney, adding that "this program is about preservation and restoration." Courtney also noted the city's investment in the 13 properties will be matched with $671,054.14 in private investment for a total of $815,354.27 spent on revitalization.

Among the projects receiving approval were four by Lisa and Tony Hammock of Riverside Group LLC, to make improvements to four West Street addresses — 513 West Street, 515 West Street, 517 West Street and 601 West Street — homes that were most recently used as office space by the former King's Daughters' Health when it was still based in downtown Madison.

"We're really grateful for everybody's work on all of these properties," said Courtney. "This is a main thoroughfare through town."

The 517 West Street residence is receiving a dilapidated structures grant of $18,212.50 that will include lead paint remediation, rebuilding the box gutters, and repairs to the chimneys, floor joists and plaster. "This is probably the worst of the buildings that they bought on West Street," said Nicole Schell, the city's director of planning.

Both 513 West Street and 515 West Street are each receiving $7,500 PACE grants, for tuck pointing and chimney repair.

The 601 West Street residence is receiving a $6,525 grant. "This is probably the better of the buildings. They are just working on some rotting wood and tuck pointing, and repairs to doors and windows," said Schell. The residence once served as the home of former Jefferson Circuit Judge Harry Nichols, who died at age 100 in 1987, and is still remembered today with a street named after Nichols on Madison's hilltop.

Three properties designated as dilapidated were awarded $25,000 each to rejuvenate those properties — one of them being the former Oscar C. Bear and Son Jewelers building at 206-208 East Main St. in a request from Brantley and Katlin Beck. "This is a significant project," said Schell. "They are doing everything from tuck painting, stabilization, structural interior work, window restoration and facade restoration." Once completed, Schell said the upper stories will be residential housing while the first floor will be commercial.

Another property receiving a $25,000 dilapidated structure grant is 315 East Fourth St. and Miller Property Management. The work will include tearing off the rear addition and rebuilding, and replacing all doors, windows and floor joists.

The final $25,000 dilapidated structure grant was for 601 Walnut St. and William Jewell. The building had served as a grocery store many years ago. Jewell's plans are for the structure to be his private residence. The work will include tuck pointing, and improvements on the windows and floor joists.

In addition to the jewelry building, three other commercial buildings are receiving PACE grants including 310 Broadway Street to Ron and Suzanne Hollinger at $6,736.06 for installing vinyl windows, repairing masonry and repairing posts that are protecting the building; 311 W. Main St. (the west side of the Scott block building) to PenShell Properties for $7,500 for removing exterior paint and replacing and repairing compromised brick; and 201 E. Main St. to 201 LLC for $5,912.50 for tuck pointing.

Elsewhere, a residence at 202 East St. was awarded a $7,500 grant to Dawn Owen-Morris for taking down and rebuilding the chimney and work on the box gutters, a residence at 810 E. Second St. was awarded a $1,164.08 grant to Mark A. Timmons for installing storm windows and 505 W. Main St. was awarded a $750 grant to Steve and Lynn Heitz McKay to replace slate tiles to restore the slate roof.

The PACE grant fund now has $79,379.40 that can be distributing the rest of the year. The deadline for the final round of applications in 2022 is Oct. 3.

In other business, the BPWS approved amendments to two previously approved PACE grants and a 12-month extension with new a deadline of Aug. 4, 2023 for Jim Pruett at 306 Jefferson Street.

Schell said there have been a lot of improvements made on the 306 Jefferson Street building but because it is a dilapidated structure the project is taking longer than anticipated. The project received a $20,847.07 grant.

A PACE final disbursement of $4,418.31was approved for Charles Requet III at 735 Jefferson St. The work included replacing windows, and removing and replacing siding with engineered wood siding. The exterior was repainted, the porch was repaired and unsafe stairs were replaced.

Tony was instrumental in making RiverRoots happen every year, he's been a volunteer at Ribberfest, he's been president of Kindred Folk Society which brings Americana music to town, and he's one the owner/partners at Red Bicycle Hall. But perhaps his biggest musical accomplishment so far, and one that is really still in its infancy, is the exciting one-day MadHop Music Fest in November.

"A lot of the music I've brought to town over the years are bands I see in other cities that I want to share with my friends here," says Tony. "The Black Lillies are a great example of that. It's a Knoxville band that has developed a strong local following here in Madison.

"MadHop Fest is another prime example. I've been a big fan of the Rhythm & Roots Festival in Bristol, Tennessee, where they have multiple bands playing all at once all over town. I used that as a model and adapted it for Madison.

"This coming Nov. 5 will be our third MadHop, and it just keeps getting more and more popular. It's 35 acts playing at seven downtown venues, all in one action-packed Saturday afternoon. We have to limit the ticket sales so we don't overwhelm the venues, so if you are interested you might want to get to MadHopMuscFest.com and get your tickets."

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

David Richards (Ridge & River Productions) has been bringing some killer shows to Madison, case in point the Billy Don Burns extravaganza at the Ohio Theatre last Saturday. This week he's hosting two country troubadours at the Electric Lady on Thursday night, WD Miller and Aaron Boyd. If alt. country is your thing, check this one out. On Friday Live Lunch at Lytle Park we have one of our all-time favorites, Tim Brickley out of Indy. Tim will be sticking around to play on Saturday at Thomas Family Winery with his full band. And just to make your decision difficult, over at Mad Paddle on Saturday night they have their ever popular House Band, but this time with special guest vocalist JJ Johnson, all the way down from Minneapolis. Looking out to next week, there's the Alex Meixner show described at length above, but coming up next Thursday, the popular national touring act Mike & the Moonpies will be at Red Bicycle Hall. Get your tickets now for that show as they will not last.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

POOL

increases or special taxes will be needed to pay off the project.

According to Tony Steinhardt III, director of Economic Development for the city, the combination of developmental growth and increased property values in Madison will see the city collect more money through property taxes next year — and presumably beyond — without having to adopt a tax increase. That will provide the money the city needs for projects like the pool and others as well as keeping pace with the needs of new development and growth.

There was some opposition to the pool proposal at Tuesday's meeting. Rick Reuss spoke against the scale of the project, which includes a slightly smaller pool than the current Crystal Beach but many more features and amenities similar to a water park. Reuss said he does not see Madison becoming a destination due to a water park and "taxpayers will be responsible for this money somehow."

Courtney countered that Crystal Beach is an "important asset" to the community and the agreement had already been made that the pool will be replaced. The pool, proposed to be of similar "Seashore" shape and footprint as the iconic original basin but with more slides, a splash pad, lazy river, lap lanes and other features, will benefit not only local residents but draw swimmers from the region.

"This has been talked about being replaced for a quarter of a century," Courtney noted, adding that Reuss actually served on a committee that recommended replacement several years earlier when the entire project would have cost millions less. "We're dealing with issues head-on and also bringing an asset back to life ... it's an investment in our future."

In the end, the council approved the lease but adopted an amendment specifying that once the pool bonds are retired that the pool property will revert to city ownership. Courtney had no problem with the amendment, but noted that since the Redevelopment Authority was created by the city, that ownership is not really an issue. The appointments were approved Tuesday including David Ott, Ashley Pennington and Kevin Watkins.

Demolition of the existing pool is already underway and the hope is that a final design can be approved in October with the project going to bids in late October or early November, a closing in December with construction beginning soon after that in order to be finished by late in the 2023 swim season.

"We're working hard to not have a second summer without a pool," Courtney told the Redevelopment Commission earlier on Tuesday. "We can all hope for a dry winter."

In other business, the council:

- Authorized Courtney and City Utilities Manager Brian Jackson to represent the city in mediation to negotiate a settlement in the city's lawsuit with the Dupont, Canaan and Rykers Ridge water companies concerning rate increases the city approved earlier this year to repay a bond issue related to a $13 million drinking water improvement project.
- Approved a zoning change that will rezone 2481 Franks Drive as commercial property and clear the way for a Culver's restaurant to develop the site. The vote was 6-0 with Council member Lucy Dattilo absent.
- Heard the second reading of amendments to the city's historic district guidelines and establishing redistricting as required by law.
- Heard the first reading of ordinances giving notice to taxpayers regarding the 2023 budget, fixing compensation for elected officials, setting salaries of appointed officers and employees and amending planning preservation and design schedule fees.
- Observed a moment of silence in memory of former Councilman and board member Jim Lee, who died Sunday, Sept. 18, 2022.

Red Sox get 3 home runs in 5-3 win; Reds set MLB mark for hitting batters

BY JEFF WALLNER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — J.D. Martinez and Rob Refsnyder hit solo homers, and Rafael Devers had a two-run shot as the Boston Red Sox beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-3 on Tuesday night.

Red Sox rookie right-hander Brayan Bello (2-6) ended a streak of 44 1/3 innings without allowing a homer as TJ Friedl had a solo shot in the third inning. Bello gave up the run and eight hits in five innings. He struck out five and walked two.

"They put pressure on him, but he made some pitches, some swings and misses," said Red Sox manager Alex Cora. "He's still learning but he's getting better. We want him to use certain pitches, be aggressive with it and trust his stuff."

Reds rookie left-hander Nick Lodolo (4-7), who had 22 strikeouts and no walks over his previous two starts, struggled with his control against Boston. He walked three and hit three batters over his five innings, giving the Reds a major league-record 99 hit batters this season — eclipsing the Chicago Cubs' total of 98 last year.

Lodolo became the first Reds pitcher to hit three or more batters in a game twice in a season since Harry Thielman in 1902. He also hit three batters at St. Louis on July 16. Lodolo has hit at least one batter in nine of his last 10 starts and has totaled 18 this season.

"The curve didn't have the right shape tonight," Lodolo said. "If that pitch would have been a little bit better we could have got away with more stuff."

Reds rookie Nick Lodolo walked three and hit three batters over his five innings, giving the Reds a major league-record 99 hit batters this season — eclipsing the Chicago Cubs' total of 98 last year.

Bello needed only nine pitches to retire the Reds in order in the first with two strikeouts. He retired three straight to leave the bases loaded in the second.

"Bello had a really good tight slider," Reds manager David Bell said. "That was the key to the game. We were able to get the bases loaded and not being able to score that inning, it affected us the rest of the game."

Martinez's triple off the center-field wall in the third drove him the game's first run. Friedl hustled over from left field to retrieve the ball and prevent an inside-the-park home run. Martinez said he was disappointed that third base coach Carlos Febles put up the stop sign.

"I said, 'What are you doing, dude? You know I have the closing speed at the end,' " Martinez said. "I was thinking, this is my chance, this is it. But I was gassed."

After Friedl tied the score in the bottom half, Refsnyder put Boston back ahead in the fourth with a solo homer, his fifth of the season. Martinez extended the lead with his 12th homer an inning later and Devers' 27th homer off Hunter Strickland made the score 5-1 in the ninth.

Cincinnati loaded the bases with one out in the bottom of the ninth against Matt Strahm, who walked in a run. He was replaced by John Schreiber who allowed a sacrifice fly but got the final out for his eighth save.

SENZEL HURT

Reds CF Nick Senzel left the game after crashing into the wall attempting to catch Martinez's triple in the third. Senzel told reporters after the game that he broke his toe and is out for the season. Bell said moments earlier that he was still waiting on results of another X-ray. "His toe hit the bottom of the wall, the unpadded part," Bell said. "We took x-rays but will take one again tomorrow."

TRAINERS ROOM

Red Sox: RHP Garrett Whitlock (right hip inflammation) is having season-ending arthroscopic hip surgery next week in New York. ... RHP Kutter Crawford (right shoulder impingement) will not pitch again this season for Boston but will continue to rehab.

Reds: RHP Graham Ashcraft (right biceps soreness) is expected to come off the injured list to start Saturday against the Milwaukee Brewers. Ashcraft currently is rehabbing at Triple-A Louisville.

Neighbors fret about divisive flag

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy — We've been living next door to a very good neighbor for almost 30 years. "Charles" is helpful and friendly, and we genuinely like him.

His political views are 180 degrees different than ours. Until now, it hasn't been an issue, as we have plenty of other things to discuss (gardening, family, etc.), and we have kept our views to ourselves.

The problem is that he has hung a large flag a few feet from our backyard fence. This flag contains a message representing ideals which are abhorrent to us.

No profanity — just divisive and hurtful implications. I don't think it's an intentional attack on us or anything like that.

We cannot avoid seeing and hearing it flapping in the wind any time we're in our yard. It extends to about 10 feet from the ground, so it can't be blocked from view.

My husband and I don't want to lose Charles' friendship or ruin what has been a good relationship for years.

But this is very upsetting to me — a constant reminder of the ugly divisions in our country. I find myself avoiding my own yard (and feeling bad toward my neighbor). What's your advice? — Torn

Dear Torn — You don't seem to have ever asked your neighbor if he could move the flag to another location in his yard, so it wasn't flapping so distractingly close to your own.

We live in a country where everyone is free to let their freak flag fly, and where people like you and your neighbor can live cordially and peacefully side-by-side — each free to express themselves, or to stay quiet, if that is what you prefer to do.

Your options are to fly a flag or banner of your own, to express your own views directly or indirectly through a multitude of media, or to exercise your own freedom to keep your own thoughts to yourself.

Friend feels selfish with response to grief

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy — My childhood friend of almost 50 years recently lost a child to suicide. We usually only call one another on our birthdays, and I have not physically seen her in almost 20 years.

I have struggled most of my life with PTSD resulting from a sexual abuse trauma when I was 17. I really did not begin healing until my current physician diagnosed me and referred me to a specialist for therapy.

Suicides always send me to a dark place because it was riding my shoulder for so many years.

My friend did not notify me personally; she posted the news to Facebook. I saw that she was receiving a lot of support, and I could not bring myself to call her.

Months passed, and instead I wrote her a letter of apology for my lack of communication, and expressed as well as I know how the sorrow I felt for her in dealing with her terrible loss.

She has not reached out to me.

I am riddled with guilt over my reaction to her loss. I usually reach out to people who have lost loved ones in a timely manner.

She has had a rough life, but in the last 25 years she remarried and took life by the horns and has done quite well.

I, however, am just now finding peace, due to finally receiving proper treatment. I procrastinated reaching out because of my own selfish(?) fears of my own instability. How can I fix this? — Selfish

Dear Selfish — Your shame has sent you into a self-punishing spiral. Now that you have processed your own behavior, you really should stop making this about you.

You have no way of knowing how this tragedy has affected your friend. You should assume that she received, read and appreciated your thoughtful note, but this sort of communication does not beg a response (grieving people are not always able to reply), and so do not think that the ball is in her court.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Be aware, keep things in balance and try to avoid choosing sides. Use your charisma and people skills in social settings, online or on the job to sideline budding disagreements and misunderstandings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Your reputation as an up and comer can be enhanced by the company you keep. Getting too involved in a temporary misunderstanding could dislocate your halo. Rely on good sense and be tolerant of others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Organize your time and create a viable schedule. Much can be accomplished when you focus on being more efficient. People are probably willing to work with your agenda and may be happy to donate to your favorite causes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You could be caught in a web of wishful thinking. A misunderstanding over terminology might be difficult to clear up. Stay in touch with reliable partners and don't waver from a successful financial plan.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Stay in your own lane. Keep your wallet in the drawer and your credit card on ice to avoid indulging in risky purchases. Spend your time in attending to your own issues rather than getting involved in other people's business.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Test the waters before you dive in. Loved ones might seem irritable or inscrutable during the next few days, so you might need to draw upon more patience and diplomacy. Take steps to avoid confrontations or misunderstandings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Your views and opinions on social issues may shift as autumn officially begins. Someone may expect you to adopt a more broadminded attitude. Remember to be respectful of other people's beliefs and lifestyles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Don't try to sell your plans or proposals. You may be unaware that someone may be suspicious of your motives. It may be boring to stick to the tried and true, but it is better that trying something new that causes distress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — This is not the time to push your luck. Your closest relationships are solid as a rock and won't be torn apart by misunderstandings or outside interference. Do everything possible to protect your vulnerabilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Don't push ahead now, you may not be solidly supported. A past mistake or old bill could show up and consume your nest egg. Agreements and contracts could grow more expensive over time if finalized today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Start stacking the building blocks of success. Apply some intelligent organization into your tasks if you hope to build something worthwhile. You can be a straight shooter without being rude or unpleasant.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Fight off the fear that arises from negative projections. You may be confused by a message or let doubts lead to a misunderstanding. If you make a point to be fair, you can straighten out a work-related problem.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Many people believe that they can count on your know-how when problems appear. You might not be able to make headway with a misunderstanding for a few more days, but your supporters should applaud your dependability.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Keep friends as friends. A romantic relationship formed under these stars might not live up to your expectations. Someone may misunderstand your intentions in a social setting or during a business transaction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You may need to rethink some past decisions. Pay attention to indications that someone has misunderstood your intentions. This could be a good time to clarify a confusing situation with a sincere apology.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Forgive and forget. A difference of opinion may easily turn into a disagreement. Show that you are a good sport and congratulate the winner if you lose the match. Find the fairest ways to overcome a misunderstanding.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You might prefer to avoid a confrontation. There may be an opportunity to ask for forgiveness or to openly discuss a difference of opinion. Ask someone for a favor and you should receive a positive response.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Avoid the domino effect. A dispute can create a distraction that causes further misunderstandings. Double down on efforts to meet a deadline even if you don't feel you have received adequate credit or recognition yet.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — A compromise is achievable, but it might require finesse to avoid a stalemate. Stop selling your ideas once you have obtained an agreement. Offer a kind word to a coworker who may be having some doubts and misgivings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Avoid going to extremes and becoming the black sheep of the family. Adopting a spirit of compromise can eliminate a problem. Any amorous feelings should be put on ice until a better time rolls around for romance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Do your fair share. Teamwork will get more done than individual efforts. Don't let family harmony fall apart over minor misunderstandings. Strengthen relationships by demonstrating your devotion frequently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Logic does not always dictate the right answer. You may try to influence a complicated situation at home that requires sound judgment. A family member might prove their complete loyalty and trustworthiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — All your hard work deserves a reward. This is a poor time to spend or invest your money but may be a good time to get out and about on the social scene. Choose neutral topics of conversation at social functions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — The path to true love may be rocky, but some things are not set in stone. Misunderstandings could occur that temporarily drive a wedge between you a loved one. Iron out differences with a compromise.

O-line woes continue for Bengals, who fall in 0-2 hole

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Some of the Cincinnati Bengals' offensive shortcomings seem all too familiar.

The offensive line is struggling to protect Joe Burrow. The offense starts slow and has to catch up in the second half. The issues were there early last season, and again during this year's opener, which the Bengals lost 23-20 in overtime to Pittsburgh.

That was the pattern again Sunday when the Bengals got down 17-3 to Dallas at halftime but rallied to tie the game, only to lose 20-17 on Brett Maher's 50-yard field goal as time expired.

The Bengals became the first AFC team since Denver in 1999 to start with consecutive losses after going to the Super Bowl the previous season.

Cowboys linebacker Micah Parsons was responsible for two of the six sacks of Burrow, who'd been sacked seven times by the Steelers the previous week.

The Bengals didn't score a first-half touchdown in either game.

"We'll go back and watch the film and see our corrections," Burrow said. "0-2 is tough, but it's no panic. We've lost two games in a row before, we lost two games in a row several times last year. Lot of football left to be played."

But there is frustration everywhere.

"I feel like, as a whole, we have to take initiative," said Joe Mixon, who finished with 19 carries for 57 yards. "Everybody. Coaches, players, everybody is involved with everything. I'm not going to finger-point or anything like that. We have to put it on us to come out and execute. Be ready to play. For some reason, it seems like we've been coming up short in that area. We've been starting off slow; little penalties here and there that have been killing us."

WHAT'S WORKING

The Bengals' defense, facing backup quarterback Cooper Rush, kept the Cowboys mostly in check. Dallas had two TDs in the first half, but Cincinnati kept the Cowboys out of the end zone in the second. The defense also got its first turnover of the season when tackle D.J. Reader recovered a fumble by Cowboys tight end Dalton Schulz.

WHAT'S NOT

It all starts with the offensive line, which has four new starters. Burrow doesn't have time to look for receivers downfield, so the passing offense has become mostly short, quick throws. Opportunities to take shots downfield have been stymied by the pass rush and shell coverages designed to limit explosive plays.

"You just got to put it all together," said La'el Collins, the Bengals' new right tackle. "This is our first time playing together, these first two weeks. I think we will be fine. We will get on the same page and just start doing what we do, and that's coming out and setting the tone."

STOCK UP

Last week against the Steelers, Evan McPherson had an extra point blocked in regulation and missed a 29-yard field goal attempt in overtime. Both kicks would have won the game. Against the Cowboys, McPherson was perfect on attempts of 43, 50 and 46 yards. ... Receiver Tee Higgins, who suffered a concussion in Week 1, caught six passes for 71 yards and a TD.

STOCK DOWN

Collins and right guard Alex Cappa were responsible for three of the Bengals' seven penalties. Collins had two false start penalties and Cappa another one that put Cincinnati behind the chains.

INJURIES

Veteran TE Drew Sample suffered a knee injury in the second quarter and did not return. The Bengals haven't provided an update.

KEY NUMBER

13: Sacks of Burrow in the first two weeks of the season.

NEXT STEPS

Offensive coordinator Brian Callahan and offensive line coach/running game coordinator Frank Pollack have to figure out how to give Burrow more time and create opportunities for explosive plays. Next Sunday, the Bengals (0-2) are at the New York Jets (1-1), who came from behind late to beat the Cleveland Browns.

Colts contemplate fixes after another dismal loss to Jags

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Indianapolis Colts coach Frank Reich briefly shed his usually measured words following Sunday's latest loss.

He called the team's performance pathetic. He even said it twice.

The most loyal Colts fans couldn't quibble with Reich's assessment following yet another inexplicably abysmal showing in Jacksonville, where the Colts have now lost eight straight.

"We'll take our medicine for the pathetic performance (Sunday), coaches and players," Reich said following the game. "We'll see how things stack up."

While Reich knows the game tape doesn't lie, neither does the tale of the tape.

There were seven winless teams left after Sunday and Tennessee (0-1) plays Monday night. Indy and Cincinnati share the league's worst turnover margin (minus-4), an abrupt turnabout from last season's league-best plus-14. The Colts also have allowed seven sacks, ranking 28th, and are averaging a league-low 10.0 points per game.

But the worst part about the 24-0 debacle was the Colts unable to fight back despite enduring January's bitter, playoff-eliminating loss also in Jacksonville. They never had a chance in that game and they were overwhelmed again in the rematch. Now the Colts are searching for answers and looking for the kind of counterpunch they need to turn this season around.

"I thought we were ready to play, but they punched us in the mouth and we ain't punching back. We got punched the whole game," running back Nyheim Hines said. "We let our coach down, we let the state of Indiana down."

Typically after these blowouts, coaches are eager to make corrections, throw away the tape and not look back. But the pass protection problems, the lack of depth at receiver and the struggle to take care of the ball while generating takeaways are hard to overlook.

And now, at 0-1-1, the long road back begins with a difficult three-game stretch that starts against Patrick Mahomes and a Kansas City Chiefs squad that has been to four straight AFC title games.

Another loss in their home opener would almost certainly rekindle memories about Indy climbing out of the 1-4 hole to make the playoffs in 2018 and falling just short last season after going 1-5 — exactly what Reich hoped to avoid when he altered Indy's training camp schedule. Heck, three weeks into the season, it could even stir debate over the franchise's future direction.

"I think everybody's ready to move on," receiver Ashton Dulin said Monday. "We all have the mindset of bouncing back. Yesterday wasn't us. Yeah, it was embarrassing but we're a different team (than that)."

WHAT'S WORKING

Jonathan Taylor. L ast year's rushing champ only logged nine carries for 54 yards, an average of 6.0. As Indy's most consistent offensive playmaker this season, he needs the ball in his hands more often.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

Offensive line. With two Pro Bowlers and a third Pro Bowl candidate, this group was expected to be one of the league's top units. Instead, there were snapping issues in Week 1, struggles in the ground game in Week 2 and quarterback Matt Ryan has been under constant duress.

STOCK UP

WR Ashton Dulin. On a day the Colts were missing their top two receivers, Dulin was a rare bright spot. He caught caught five passes for 79 yards, both career highs.

STOCK DOWN

Ryan. The 15-year veteran was supposed to add leadership and stability to the locker room. But after two games, the 37-year-old Ryan already has four interceptions and five fumbles against two teams expected to finish near the bottom of the league.

Big Ten running back tradition alive and well behind Brown and Ibrahim

BY ERIC OLSON
AP COLLEGE FOOTBALL WRITER

The Big Ten's tradition of producing elite running backs is alive and well.

The conference features the nation's top two rushers in Illinois' Chase Brown and Minnesota's Mohamed Ibrahim, and four others are running for better than 100 yards per game. No other league has more than three.

The Big Ten is the only conference in the last 10 years that has had at least two players end the season with rushing averages of 100 yards per game or better.

"Doesn't surprise me," said Wisconsin coach Paul Chryst, whose program has developed stars like Jonathan Taylor, Melvin Gordon and Montee Ball the past decade and has one on the rise in Braelon Allen.

For those who do it best, the future is bright. Taylor led the NFL in rushing last year. Ezekiel Elliott (Ohio State) was first in 2016 and '18. Jordan Howard (Indiana) was second for 2016. Saquon Barkley (Penn State) was second in 2018 and is this season's leader through Week 2.

Brown, averaging 165.3 yards, is the first Illinois player to run for at least 140 in three straight games. He also leads the nation with 18 runs of 10 yards or longer and, according to Pro Football Focus, is tied for second with 24 forced missed tackles.

"He's an animal," quarterback Tommy DeVito said. "Sometimes I hand off the ball, I'm supposed to keep my little boot going out, fake going upfield. Sometimes I give a little peek just to watch him because he's a special dude, for sure. He can turn something out of nothing. Anything can be a play where he'll break one."

Ibrahim, back after missing last season's final 12 games with a torn Achilles tendon, has proved tough to bring down in his six years at Minnesota. Ibrahim is averaging 154.7 yards per game, albeit against weak opponents, and leads the nation with 315 of his 464 yards coming after contact by PFF's count. Ibrahim ran for 202 yards and scored the Gophers' first three touchdowns in a 49-7 win over Colorado on Saturday. He has 12 straight 100-yard games and four career 200-yard games, both school records.

Ibrahim is a perfect fit for a physical Minnesota offense that puts a premium on time of possession.

"Well, obviously you'd always like to have a bunch of Mos," Gophers coach P.J. Fleck said. "Just keep bringing 'em, right?"

The other Big Ten backs averaging at least 100 yards are Nebraska's Anthony Grant (116), Penn State's Nicholas Singleton (111.3), Wisconsin's Braelon Allen (110.7) and Northwestern's Evan Hull (102.7).

Aces win first WNBA title, Gray named MVP

BY PAT EATON-ROBB
ASSOCIATED PRESS

UNCASVILLE, Conn. Las Vegas never had a professional sports champion — until Sunday.

Chelsea Gray scored 20 points to lead the Las Vegas Aces to their first WNBA title, and the city's first pro title, in a 78-71 road win over the Connecticut Sun in Game 4. Gray went 9 of 13 from the floor, and was named Finals MVP after averaging 18.3 points in the series.

Vegas finished on an 8-0 run. As the buzzer sounded, league MVP A'ja Wilson, who played every minute of the game, grabbed the ball and stomped the floor before being mobbed by her teammates.

"We champs! We champs! We champs!" Wilson screamed at teammates as they pulled on their championship hats and T-shirts before the trophy ceremony.

Riquna Williams had 17 points for Vegas, Kelsey Plum added 16 points, Jackie Young had 13 and Wilson added 11 points to go with her 14 rebounds.

Wilson hopes this is just the beginning for the franchise.

"You see it. You see it," Wilson said in the on-court celebration. "This is what we're building. This is what we're doing. This is it. I'm so happy right now."

Courtney Williams had 17 points to lead Connecticut and Alyssa Thomas had her second straight triple-double with 11 points, 11 assists and 10 rebounds. Jonquel Jones added 13 points and DeWanna Bonner had 12.

"When you come up short it certainly, really hurts," Sun coach Curt Miller said. "But that means that there was something that mattered, and something special among that group of players."

For Aces coach Becky Hammon, who didn't get a title in her standout WNBA career, the ring completed a decades-long quest. She left an assistant coach position with Gregg Popovich and the San Antonio Spurs to take over in Las Vegas. The move paid off.

"They're unbelievable on the court, but they're unbelievable humans, first and foremost," Hammon said. "They care about each other. They invest in each other. It's been an absolute honor to be their coach. I saw excellence and I wanted to be a part of it."

Hammon also paid tribute to former Aces coach Bill Laimbeer, who was on the floor for the ceremony: "He put this team together and saw the pieces."

Aces owner Mark Davis, who also owns the NFL's Las Vegas Raiders, wasn't with his football team Sunday. He was in Connecticut to get a trophy. He hoisted it, then turned it over to gleeful players who did the same.

"Las Vegas, we are world champions," Davis said.

The Aces led by two points at the half and four points after three quarters. They held a six-point lead in the fourth when Plum was called for a flagrant foul after running into Bonner while the Sun guard was attempting a 3-pointer and sending her to the floor holding her right ankle.

Bonner hit all three free throws before Jones' short jumper cut the lead to a point. The Sun then tied the game at 67 on free throw by Courtney Williams and took a 71-70 lead on two fouls shots from Brionna Jones.

But Las Vegas had the answers.

Riquna Williams 3-pointer put the Aces back on top and Gray's step-back jumper extended the lead back to 75-71 with under a minute left. A'ja Wilson then stole a pass and Plum hit a short jump shot to secure the win.

SCRAPPY GAME

As expected, it was a physical game — appropriately played on an NFL Sunday. The Sun got a scare when Bonner took an inadvertent elbow to the gut from Gray late in the first quarter and was on the floor for a few minutes before being helped to the bench. She came back into the game later in the half, apparently suffering no ill effects. Natisha Hiedeman and Plum got into a short pushing match in the second quarter, eliciting technical fouls for both players. That was all before Plum's flagrant in the fourth.

NO GRAY AREA

Gray wasn't a WNBA All-Star this season, nor was she a first-team all-league pick, and had voiced her displeasure about that. After scoring 21 points in each of the first two games of the Finals, she scored just 11 points in Game 3, but bounced back. Way back.

"They can keep that All-Star and first team," Gray said. "I got the ring."

INCLUSIVE ORGANIZATIONS

Before the game, both coaches reflected on the makeup of organizations in the Final.

The Aces are led by Hammon and two Black women executives in general manager Natalie Williams and Nikki Fargas, president of business operations. The Sun are owned by the Mohegan Tribe, have a woman president in Jen Rizzotti and are coached by Curt Miller, a gay man.

"Women's basketball is such a story in terms of diversity and inclusion. I mean, our league defines it and I'm so proud to be a part of it," Miller said, adding that he hopes to be an inspiration to any gay child "wondering if they can chase a career in sports."

Hammon said she believes the diversity in her team's front office has made it stronger.

"You can make a lot better picture with a box full of crayons than just a pencil," she said.

VEGAS PRIDE AND PARADE

The start of the celebration was shown on the video screens at the Raiders' stadium during the NFL game against Arizona on Sunday, with fans breaking into loud cheers.

They can cheer more in a few days: a parade on the Las Vegas Strip is planned for Tuesday night.

"What a team, what talent, what a victory! You have made Las Vegas so proud!" Las Vegas Mayor Carolyn Goodman said in a statement. "Thank you for your effort, discipline & focus. We can't wait for the celebrations & a great parade!"
